

Enter the “Slow for the Cone Zone” Poetry Jam

Choose one of these themes:

1. Most people think that in work zones it’s the highway workers most at risk. The truth is, it’s drivers and passengers getting hit by other drivers—especially teens. How would you get friends to pay attention and slow down when driving in a highway work zone?

Safe driving in the Cone Zone means:

- Slowing down
- Merging early
- Putting extra space between you and the car ahead
- Watching out for other drivers cutting you off

OR

2. There are more and more cars on the road, which means more work zones and possibly more collisions. And a collision affects not only those in the crash, but their family and friends. What are your thoughts and feelings about driving carefully in highway work zones?

Whichever theme you choose, be sure to include the phrase, “Slow for the Cone Zone.”

DEADLINE IS DECEMBER 8, 2006
